

The Memphis Appeal.

A PATRIOTIC MOVEMENT.

Formation of an Irish Brigade Proposed.

At a meeting of the Irish officers at Columbus, held on the 30th ult., for the purpose of considering the propriety of organizing an Irish brigade for the war, committees were appointed to prepare resolutions and draft an address. The following reports were made and unanimously adopted:

PROBLEMS AND RESOLUTIONS.

We, the undersigned committee, being appointed at a previous meeting of Irish officers, to draw up a preamble and resolutions indicating the course of action to be pursued in the formation of an Irish brigade, legion, regiment or battalion, as the case may be, have to the honor to submit the following:

Whereas, The time is now approaching when the term of enlistment of the majority of the troops stationed at this point will expire, and it behooves every patriot who has the defense of his country at heart, to well consider such means as may best lead to the reorganization and enlistment of the men who have already served with so much credit and valor in the defense of the country; and whereas, there are now, at the lowest calculation, say three thousand Irishmen stationed at this point, who are patriotic, whose term expires in May and June, and whose ardor and most sincere desire is to be in the front of the South; and whereas, it is the opinion of this committee that no organization can be effected so efficient, and around which the Irish element of the South can rally so enthusiastically, or which will be more conducive to the interests of the South than an Irish brigade; be it therefore

REJOICING AND PATRIOTIC ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE OF GEORGIA.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: In a few days the provisional government of the Confederate States will live only in history. Will it, we shall deliver up the trust we have endeavored to use for your benefit, to those who are directly selected by you. The public record of our action is familiar to you, and requires no further explanation at our hands. Of those matters, which policy has required to be secret, it would be impertinent now to speak. This address, therefore, will have no personal reference.

We are well assured that there exists no necessity for us to arouse your patriotism, nor to inspire your confidence. We rejoice with you that the Georgia has been "illustrated," and we do not but be illustrated again by her sons in our holy struggle. The first campaign is over—such duty is done. Let her sons, in the future, declare an armistice on high. The results in the field are familiar to you, and we will not repeat them. To some important facts we call your attention.

1st.—The moderation of our own government and the financial means of our commonwealth have been the cause of our success in the war of independence. In a few weeks the South is a nation of free men, and the world is a nation of free men. The world's history does not give a parallel instance of a revolution based upon such unanimity among the people.

2d.—Our enemy has exhibited an extraordinary perseverance and an amount of resources which we had hardly expected, and a disregard of casualties and lives which we can hardly credit. The result is, that the South is a nation of free men, and the world is a nation of free men. The world's history does not give a parallel instance of a revolution based upon such unanimity among the people.

3d.—An immense army has been organized for its destruction, which is being disciplined in the mountains of Georgia. The South is a nation of free men, and the world is a nation of free men. The world's history does not give a parallel instance of a revolution based upon such unanimity among the people.

4th.—The prospect of foreign interference is a matter of great importance. The South is a nation of free men, and the world is a nation of free men. The world's history does not give a parallel instance of a revolution based upon such unanimity among the people.

5th.—The South is a nation of free men, and the world is a nation of free men. The world's history does not give a parallel instance of a revolution based upon such unanimity among the people.

A DINK FROM THE LONDON

The London Press, for December, is decidedly rich on American affairs, especially in its eulogies and caricatures of Washington notabilities. The entertainment of our readers we wish up a few specimens of its dink:

English and American Bulls.—An English bull is called a cow, and a cow is called a bull. An American bull is called a cow, and a cow is called a bull. An English bull is called a cow, and a cow is called a bull. An American bull is called a cow, and a cow is called a bull.

A Contrast.—English character personified in John Bull. The character of America is embodied in John Bull. The character of America is embodied in John Bull. The character of America is embodied in John Bull.

The American Exhibition.—Mr. Punch has been pleased to announce in the most optimistic manner, that the directors of the international exhibition have not forgotten the possibility of the absence of voluntary contributions from the Southern States of America. The subject has been taken into grave consideration, and negotiations have been entered into for the supply of the deficiency, should it unfortunately occur. Without entering into details, the whole arrangement may be rendered unnecessary by the arrival of Messrs. Mason and Slidell, at the end of the month of February.

ORDERED TO LEAVE.—At the Mayor's court yesterday, John Williams, who entered a plea of guilty to the charge of being a vagrant, was ordered to leave the city. He was taken to the workhouse, and his name was added to the list of vagrants.

CITIZENSHIP OFFICER.—Sullivan, yesterday, was called upon by a woman of the name of Smith, who was applying for citizenship. She was told that she was not qualified, and was ordered to leave the city.
